This course guide has been prepared months in advance of the 2006-2007 academic year and information contained herein is subject to change. Students are advised not to purchase any texts without the approval of the professor concerned.
Due to the renumbering of courses in the Department, students should consult the list of equivalent undergraduate courses in the back of the 2006-2007 undergraduate calendar.

FACULTY

A list of the full-time faculty follows below. All possess degrees from universities and/or schools of advanced studies that represent the best academic centres for the study of religion in North America and India. All have published books that have made a contribution to their particular fields of study, have published in learned journals and given papers at learned societies. They have also won a reputation among their students for being good teachers, concerned about the quality of instruction at Concordia University, as well as for being "available" and committed to the development of a more meaningful student life.

INTRODUCTION TO THE DEPARTMENT

General Objectives

The Department of Religion is dedicated to the academic study of religions and other social and cultural phenomena in so far as they have been influenced or affected by religions. We are interested in the comparative study of many religions. Although we do study how many religious traditions articulate and defend their own self-understandings, we treat these theologies and buddhologies academically and comparatively.

Nature of Religious Studies

The academic study of religion is a multi-disciplinary enterprise. It involves the historical examination of religious movements, the literary analyses of their literatures, philosophical reflections on beliefs and teachings, the social scientific investigations of their rituals, practices, texts, and institutions, the psychological study of their participants and ethical inquiries regarding both their moral writings and social roles.

Correspondingly, the faculty in the department have been trained in a number of academic disciplines including history, sociology, anthropology, literary studies, philosophy, psychology and theology as well as in the study of particular religious traditions.

KNOWLEDGE OF TWO MAJOR RELIGIOUS TRADITIONS

The Department believes that every Major or Honours student in Religion or in Judaic Studies should possess, at time of graduation, a knowledge of at least two major religious traditions. For example, the student who is pursuing a Major in Judaic Studies will take some courses in a religious tradition other than Judaism. This basic principle reinforces the emphasis upon the centrality of the discipline of the History of Religions. A particular religious tradition can best be understood in the context of the general religious history of humankind.

DEPARTMENTAL PROGRAMMES

The Department of Religion offers at the undergraduate level: minors, majors and honours programmes in Religion and in Judaic Studies. The degree requirements for all of these programmes can be found below. We also offer several graduate programmes: an M.A. in the History and Philosophy of Religion, an M.A. in Judaic Studies, and a Ph.D. in Religion. For further information on our graduate programmes, please contact the graduate programme assistant at 848-2077.

Women and Religion

As part of the Department of Religion's undergraduate curriculum, a concentration in Women and Religion is offered. A variety of special courses are included in the regular program for the BA major in Religion. Religion majors can focus on this area for either the primary or secondary concentration requirements.

The study of women and religion is a growing field in which the Department of Religion of Concordia University has long been a leader. This structured concentration solidifies our commitment to this field and enables us to prepare students in a systematic and consistent fashion. The concentration furthers the work of the department in that it will allow students to pursue course work from a comparative, cross-cultural and multi-tradition perspective. The study of the role of women in the history and practice of religion introduces our students to an exciting and vital area of study.

THE BOYD SINYARD AWARD

Each year the Boyd Sinyard award is given to the outstanding graduating student in Religion. The award is named after the first chairman of the Department of Religion at Sir George Williams University.

CONCORDIA RELIGION STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION (CRSA)

If you are studying within the Department of Religion (i.e. if you are an Honours, Major, Minor or just taking a course offered by the department), you are a member of the CRSA. CRSA is a student-administered organization dedicated to fostering community and expanding the educational experience of all Religion students. Each year the executive branch of CRSA (five students elected to plan and administer CRSA affairs) offers Religion students the chance to meet each other and faculty at various social gatherings, as well as the opportunity to enliven their education by attending CRSA sponsored lectures given by learned academics and religious thinkers from all parts of the world. CRSA members are urged to take advantage of the student lounge located in the basement of annex R (2050 Mackay). This is a place where students can study, hang out or use the free phone. If you would like more information about CRSA, leave a message in our mailbox at the Department of Religion.

The course examines the sacred stories, ceremonial patterns, life cycle rituals, and religious activities in their varied expressions. Consideration is given to the historical interaction of native government with religious practices.

RELI 398K/1 – A (3 credits) T.J. 0930-1200

Special Subject: WOMEN, RELIGION AND COLONIALISM IN NORTH AMERICA
Instructor: Denise Nadeau

This course examines how ideologies of gender and religion have intersected in the construction of colonial projects in North America and how women have created and live out religious counter-narratives as acts of resistance to colonialism. The first half of the course examines how racist images of indigenous and tribal women informed European Christianity and were used to establish and maintain Anglo-European conquest of North America. The second half of the course considers how the myths and ideologies of gender, religion and colonialism have reappeared in Western discourses about women and fundamentalisms and women as religious “other” and how these neo-colonial discourses are being challenged by anti-facist feminists.

(RELZ 218/4 - A)
WISDOM, TRADITION AND ENLIGHTENMENT
Instructor: TBA

Most of the world's religions have formulated a set of teachings which convey an idea of the fundamental realities of the nature of the universe, and of the path by which humankind can come to a realization of these realities. Such a realization is frequently equated with the ultimate goal of enlightenment as liberation, or knowledge of/union with the transcendent. This course will explore several of the religious traditions which have developed texts and practices leading to wisdom. Note: Students who have received credit for RELZ 218 or RELI/RELZ 298E may not take this course for credit

RELI 220/2- A (3 credits) T.J. 1015-1130
INTRODUCTION TO JUDAISM
Instructor: Sonia Zylberberg

This course will examine the history of Jews and of Judaism from ancient times until the present. It will emphasize the continuities, changes and interrelationships with respect to Jewish social, religious and intellectual life through the ages. It will also carefully examine the varieties of belief and practice in contemporary Jewish life. Note: Students who have received credit for RELI 222 may not take this course for credit.

RELI 223/4 - A (3 credits)
INTRODUCTION TO CHRISTIANITY
Instructor: Laurie Lamoureux-Scholes

M.W. 1445-1600

This course provides an introduction to key developments and enduring structures in the historical evolution of Christianity. It examines the variety of expressions of faith that are embodied by the Eastern churches (e.g. Greek and Russian Orthodox, Syrian) and the Western (e.g. Roman Catholic, Protestant), and traces the ways in which institutions, symbols, and rituals have in the past and continue today to carry forward the Christian tradition as a world religion in a variety of cultural contexts.

RELI 224/2 - A (3 credits)
INTRODUCTION TO ISLAM
Instructor: Richard Foltz

M.W. 1445-1600

This course explores the religious tradition of Islam through the beliefs and practices of the vast number of Muslims scattered throughout the world — in the Middle East, Indonesia, India and Pakistan, North America, and other places. It examines the scriptures and common rituals or "pillars" of the religion, as well as expressions of life and culture in the past and present such as the law (shariah), the Islamic arts, and the mystical orders. The course also provides a historical framework of the classical period of Islam up to the Abbasid empire (eighth century). Note: Students who have received credit for RELI 313 may not take this course for credit.

RELI 224/4 - A (3 credits)
INTRODUCTION TO ISLAM
Instructor: Bilal Kuspinar

M.W. 1145-1300

This course explores the religious tradition of Islam through the beliefs and practices of the vast number of Muslims scattered throughout the world — in the Middle East, Indonesia, India and Pakistan, North America, and other places. It examines the scriptures and common rituals or "pillars" of the religion, as well as expressions of life and culture in the past and present such as the law (shariah), the Islamic arts, and the mystical orders. INTRODUCTION TO HINDUISM
Instructor: Robert Menzies

M.W. 1015-1130

This course introduces students to some of the essential concepts of Hinduism that have been of enduring significance for the tradition – such as dharma (religious duty, as well as the spiritual/social order), moksa (the goal of liberation), and karma (action, understood in ethical as well as ritual terms). This course focuses on the ways in which these ideals have been embodied in particular scriptural, historical, and regional contexts by examining narrative literature, various practices of worship and asceticism, and contemporary interpretations. Note: Students who have received credit for this topic under a RELI 298 number may not take this course for credit.

RELI 226/2 - A (3 credits)

T.J.1015-1130

INTRODUCTION TO BUDDHISM

Instructor: Marc des Jardins

This course introduces students to the diversity of forms of Buddhism that have emerged in history and are practiced today. It examines those aspects that are shared in common by Buddhists all over the world, including reverence for the Buddha, support of the monastic order, and adherence to the Buddha's teachings. The course explores the ways in which these ideals and beliefs are expressed through such Buddhist practices as worship, study, pilgrimage, and meditation. Note: Students who have received credit for RELI 350 or 364 may not take this course for credit.

RELI 233/4 - A (3 credits)

PSYCHOLOGY OF RELIGION
Instructor: Michael Oppenheim

The discipline of Psychology of Religion can usually be described in terms of two streams. The first is experimental and empirical and the second philosophical and theoretical. This class will focus on the second stream. It will seek insights from the convergence of the disciplines of psychology and religious studies in addressing such questions as: What does it mean to be religious? What is the role of religion in individual development? What is the place of relationships to others in religious life? How is authenticity characterized? How are gender differences treated in the psychology of religion? We will explore some of the classical psychological theories of religion, those developed by James, Freud, Erikson, and Jung, as well as more recent developments by post-modern and feminist theorists.

DEATH AND DYING

Instructor: Laurie Lamoureux-Scholes

This course provides a comparative perspective on the variety of conceptions and practices related to death and dying that are found in different world religions. In addition, the course considers how people in contemporary North American society utilise traditional religious concepts and rituals, scientific understandings and medical procedures, or innovative combinations of ideas and practices to cope with, and make sense of, the problem of death. Lectures, discussions and some small group work will constitute the major teaching methods. Guest lecturers will be invited. Students should complete the course with some general understanding of, and critical appreciation for, the ways in which different religious traditions explain death and its attendant issues, and how these might assist individuals in coping with their own death or that of others.

WITCHCRAFT, MAGIC AND RELIGION
Instructor: Maria Mamfredis

T.1800-2015

In this course we will approach the study of magic, witchcraft and religion from a number of perspectives. We will begin with a review of the history of the academic study of the subject and an examination of whether the different explanations and definitions provided by scholars for magic, witchcraft and religion have led to a better understanding or misunderstanding of these. We will then explore a variety of practices which have been labelled as witchcraft and/or magic, beginning with examples from the ancient world, to indigenous cultures and Europe in the Middle Ages and early Modernity with the added aim of understanding how the historical, political and economic contexts contribute to and are in turn affected by claims and /or accusations of witchcraft and magic. We will conclude with a more thorough examination of contemporary movements from the perspective of adherents as well as an exploration of these movements relationship to the modern and post-modern world. The first goal will be to understand how different cultures understand and explain the presence of witches, magicians and sorcerers in their midst. The second goal will be to understand how witches, magicians and sorcerers understand themselves. Throughout the course we will continue to examine the evidence with the aim of better understanding the similarities and/or differences between witchcraft and magic on the one hand and religion on the other.

LITERATURE AND THE HOLOCAUST
(Selected Topics in Religion)
Instructor: Norman Ravvin

Religious, historical, literary, and political contexts have been applied to come to terms with the events of the Holocaust. All of these will be relevant as we read important and provocative novels dealing with such issues as ethics, the relationship between art and history, the use of humour and popular cultural forms, as well as the way that storytelling helps direct our understanding of events that are often said to be "incomprehensible." We will also consider the wider impact of fiction dealing with the Holocaust on the popular media, including film, cd roms, video, and news reporting. Course texts will allow us to consider European and North American responses, well- and little-known writers, as well as figures whose work has become both iconic and problematic.

ISLAM IN SOUTH ASIA
(Selected Topics in Religion)
Instructor: Richard Foltz

About one-third of the worlds Muslims live in India, Pakistan or Bangladesh, making South Asia the world region with the largest proportion of Muslims. Yet many aspects of Muslim belief and practice in these countries have a distinctively South Asian flavor and in some cases derive from regional cultural traditions. This course looks at the history of Muslim presence in South Asia, including its extensive political and cultural impact from the 7th century to the present, and investigates the complexities of communal identity over the course of that history. The role of Sufism and Muslim contributions to South Asian literature, art, architecture and music will also be explored.

6 SCHOOLS OF HINDU THOUGHT
(Selected Topics in Religion)
(cross-listed with PHIL 298O)
Instructor: T.S. Rukmani

Hinduism as a religion has absorbed a number of philosophical concepts so that it is difficult to fully appreciate it without a background of its philosophy. Concepts like maya, karma, dharma, moksa, atma etc., are part and parcel of Hinduism and yet they cannot come alive except in a philosophical context. This course tries to acquaint the student with the basic philosophical concepts in Hinduism through a study of the six philosophical schools known as Nyaya, Vaisesika, Sankhya, Yoga, Purvamimamsa and Vedanta. It is hoped that at the end of the course the student will have a better grasp of the Hindu religion.
