

Suzuki is coming

Dr. David Suzuki, the controversial geneticist, long-haired, mustaschioed, with wire-rimmed spectacles, will be giving the Loyola lecture this term at the invitation of the Senate Committee on Visiting Lecturers. The date of the lecture is scheduled for late February or March.

"Suzuki on Science", a 1970 CBC-TV Vancouver series, first brought Dr. Suzuki into national prominence. Now four years later, on leave from his teaching duties at the University of British Columbia, Suzuki is again doing a show for CBC-TV entitled "Science Magazine". It consists of eight half-hour reports and began earlier this month. CBC regards the project as a possible pilot for a full series next year.

Dr. Suzuki was born in Vancouver in 1936. He attended Amherst College, Massachusetts, and intended to become a physician until he got "turned-on" by genetics. He took a doctorate at the University of Chicago and worked at Tennessee's Oak Ridge National Laboratory. Returning to Canada, he taught first at the University of Alberta before becoming a full professor at the University of British Columbia.

Concordia's place in Quebec

Following is excerpted from the rector's statements in the Suburban:

"The English language community should insist on the maintenance of Concordia and McGill Universities which complement and compete with each other and which will provide a stronger guarantee of continuing English-language education in the province." (Each has an enrollment of approximately 16,000 full-time equivalent students)

Dr. O'Brien would not predict what affects, if any, Bill 22 will have on Concordia. "We're still trying to find out what Bill 22 means. We will have to deal with the outside world in French, but this will mean no great change since we've been dealing in French with the government for some time now anyway..."

"We are now at the end of the period of rapid university expansion of the 50s and 60s, insofar as we can see. Enrollment will, at best, be stable and may drop in the next decade for a wide variety of reasons including the fact that completion of CEGEP is a logical stopping place for many students. The merger has come at a particularly crucial point in time."

Mass goes national

The 11:15 Sunday February 2 mass in the Loyola chapel will be televised nationally over the CBC network. Loyola campus ministry personnel, Rev. Robert Nagy and Rev. Robert Gaudet, will conduct the service, assisted by Sister Kathleen Duffin who will lead the choir. The broadcast will begin at 11 a.m. and will include a documentary short about the chapel.

Plans volume

Dr. Susan Drysdale, Co-ordinator of the Women's Studies Program, is planning a volume this spring on working women. The United Nations has proclaimed 1975 International Woman's Year, dedicated to establishing women's rights under the law.

Do it yourself graphics

An Auto Tutorial Course in Basic Graphics is the title of a graphics kit being marketed by Loyola Professor Joan Tierney. The kit, which sells for $500, consists of over 500 slides, 30 graphics lessons and seminars on: using color theory in graphic design for message clarity; how to use spatial organization to increase message effectiveness; how to visualize ideas.

Professor Tierney's expertise stems from a wide variety of disciplines ranging from French philosophy and linguistics to media arts. She says that audio-visual combinations of graphic designs and the written word, based on knowledge of human learning processes, can revolutionize learning by expanding our capacities to see and hear.

She teaches a basic graphics course for communication and education at Concordia and has incorporated these concepts into the kit.

Immigration issue

Concordia's refusal to accept many foreign applicants for January enrollment was based on a question of priorities, says John O'Brien, rector of the university.

"We have to put a limit on the number of foreign students or our capacity will be flooded." He says that the purpose of January registration is to help CEGEP graduates, who complete their studies at Christmas, "not to admit foreign students."

Concordia Registrar, Ken Adams, says the reason for the flood of 1,200 applicants was the extensive promotion of winter registration done last fall in the local CEGEPs. Both campuses - then independent entities - had January enrollment last year, but did very little to publicize it.

Of the applicants for winter registration, Loyola accepted 150, and Sir George 210.

"There was no real surge of foreign applicants," says Adams. "Many foreign students who applied late had their applications forwarded to January, rather than being asked to re-apply, as was usual."

What they're readin'

Father A. Graham, S.J. - "Whenever I can, I read David D. Boyden's An Introduction to Music."

Kathy Waters - "I'm doing the inverse of what most people would do. I'm reading George Elliot's Mill on the Floss for pleasure, and Erica John's Fear of Flying for my Women in Literature course."

Father Jack O'Brien, S.J. - "I have three going at the moment. One is Strictly Speaking, it's interesting because it is by Edwin Newman, and he interests me. It's fun."

Dean of Arts and Science Russel Breen - Three books simultaneously, The Crucified God by Jurgen Moltmann; Sous le Soleil de la Pitié, by J.P. DesBiennes and The New Cross-Country Ski Book by John Caldwell. I'm enjoying all of them."

R.P. Duder - The Siren Years - A Canadian Diplomat Abroad 1930-45, by Charles Ritchie, and about four other books.

Dean Boyle - "At the moment, none at all. Too involved."

Father Bob Gaudet, S.J. - "Among others, Exploring Montreal, written by the Save Montreal group."

Graeme Decarie: "Collected Stories of Dorothy Parker by Dorothy Parker - Clever little short stories - rather excessively cute."

Les Price - "Any good book I can get my hands on" ... and of course The Loyola News.

Ray Kenyon - "The Wisdom of Insecurity, a terrific book explaining how we are all missing a lot in life by running around trying to be secure."

Maureen Jones (Registrar's Office) - "I'm reading Elizabeth Longford's The Life of Queen Victoria... it's fabulous."

Warm blood

A work-to-rule decision by the Red Cross technicians' union set the Loyola campus' blood drive back two and one-quarter hours Tuesday. The technicians, bargaining for a new contract, refused to work until the temperature in the gymnasium reached 70 degrees.

The annual blood donor clinic, sponsored by the Loyola Commerce Students Association, set 1000 pints as its goal.

BREEN BACK: Dean Russell Breen has accepted the appointment of Dean of the Loyola Faculty of Arts and Science for a five-year period, effective June 1, 1975.

What's happening

To have a Loyola event listed on this page phone Robin Palmer at 482-0320, ext. 438 by 4 p.m. Tuesday. To have a Sir George event listed phone Maryse Perraud at 879-2823 by 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Sir George film prof Del Tredici's show finishes its run in the gallery Jan. 28. The former Fullbright Fellow says he didn't get the camera bug until he started teaching: "I felt photography to be an ideal vehicle for visual expression, for someone who is engaged in the 'other' profession of teaching..."

Gallery goers should take advantage of Maritimer Tom Forrestall's show of Canada's eastern scapes, finishing soon.

Governors

The board of governors met Thursday, January 16. Chairman Alec Duff noted with satisfaction that the last hockey game between the Loyola Warriors and the Georgians was played with spirit but without the "untoward events" (punchouts, etc., among players and spectators) which blemished the previous match between the two campuses. (Observers report that there were only two minor incidents of fisticuffs during the last game). He thanked Rector John O'Brien and his associates for their part in the peace negotiations.

Chancellor Harry Hemens asked that the new coat of arms designed for Concordia by English Prof. David McKeen be accepted but that the motto and the colours be sent back to committee for further consideration. He said that the choice of colours (Loyola's maroon and SGW's gold) had received some criticism both in a Georgian editorial and in a letter from a member of the board. His request was granted.

The graduating ceremonies committee recommendation that separate convocations be held for each Concordia faculty beginning this Spring were accepted. The committee suggested that convocations for the smallest faculties -- fine arts, engineering and SGW science -- be held in the Hall Building's alumni auditorium (H-110) and that Commerce and Loyola arts and science hold their convocations at Loyola -- outdoors, weather permitting. SGW arts, the largest faculty, would hold its ceremonies at Theatre Maisonneuve. Fall convocation would small enough for an all-faculty ceremony at Salle Wilfred Pelletier.

The committee recommended that one or two honorary degrees be awarded at each of the six Spring convocations. As for convocation addresses, the committee said: "... whether an honorand is asked to give a speech or, indeed, whether there is a speech, would depend on the likelihood that the speech will be interesting."

The rector said that word about university grants had not come down from Quebec. There were a number of possible reasons for the delay, among them, the fact that the government is working out a new scheme for distributing the total grant among universities which might be partially put into effect this year. Word may not arrive before April, he said.

The board was asked to consider a recommendation that Sir George stop its practice of charging imputations or "rent" for the office space occupied by student services and the students' associations. If the recommendation is passed it may lead either to a reduction in student services fees or to an increase in services provided. The recommendation does not cover gyms or arenas. Loyola does not charge such "rents" but it may have to if the recommendation is not approved and a new Concordia policy is fashioned after the Sir George practice.

Five-grand grant

The American Society for Metals has awarded a $5000 grant to Hugh McQueen, professor of mechanical engineering at Sir George towards the production costs of an educational film on dislocations in crystals.

Primarily intended for specialist audiences, the 40-minute colour film uses a variety of animation techniques to illustrate how the motion of crystalline imperfections known as dislocations brings about the plastic deformation of materials. The project has been in preparation for over five years by a team of students and specialists co-ordinated by Dr. McQueen.

A test print without sound track is available for borrowing, and has already been successfully submitted for trial use by groups of instructors and students in universities across North America.

The final English version of the film is expected in June/75, with plans in the making for productions in other languages.

American underground Cinema Hero to Sir George

Stan Brakhage, prolific giant of American underground cinema, will be at the Conservatory of Cinematographic Art this Sunday to discuss his work.

The 42 year-old filmmaker, considered a visual poet of the non-commercial scene, will show nine of his movies - "The Wonder Ring" (1955), "Thigh Line Lyre Triangular" (1961), "Fire of Waters" (1965), "Scenes from Under Childhood" (1969), "The Machine of Eden" (1970), "Sexual Meditation Room with a View", "Skein" (1974), "Flight" (1974), and "Star Garden" (1974).

It's at 3 p.m. in room 110 of the Hall Building for 75¢.

Brakhage usually takes rather ordinary subjects and discovers the art and subtleties within them. In "Scenes from Under Childhood" he shows the development from fetus through infancy and school years in a way that reveals the violent terror and overwhelming joy of the child's world; "Thigh Line Lyre Triangular" is an evocation of childbirth created by handpainted abstractions over photographic images.

He has been making films of one kind or another since he was 18. He lives with wife and five kids in an 1890 log cabin 9000 feet up in the mountains of Colorado.

Artists on art
