

Building Inclusive Cities: Planning Tools that Promote the Right to the City

Carolyn Whitzman

Associate Professor
Department of Architecture, Building, and Planning
University of Melbourne

Friday, January 11, 2012

12:30 - 1:30 PM

Room H-1252

This talk examines four recent research projects where partnerships and planning tools have been developed to improve access to public services and public space. Gender Inclusive Cities (2009-2011) helped develop partnerships between women's organizations and local governments in four cities, including Delhi, India. Travelling Together (2010-2013) engages grassroots disabled people's organizations to identify road improvements in Papua New Guinea. Citizen Kid (2008-2013) is a set of research projects aimed at supporting the abilities of children aged 8-12 to autonomously explore Australian cities. And finally, Place, Health and Liveability (2012-onward) focuses on integrated planning policies in Melbourne to improve health outcomes.

Presented by the Department of Geography, Planning, and Environment