

Abstract

Come participate in an interactive discussion around careers, science, industry, and employment. I'll talk about my own personal experiences going from PhD to Postdoc to CEO of Molecular Forecaster. I'll touch on similarities and differences between academic and industrial research and highlight some considerations when applying for jobs. There will be lots of time for questions, so I hope to see lots of students and professors joining for the afternoon.