(Radio-Canada)

Presented by the Concordia
Centre for Broadcasting
and Journalism Studies

Date: Monday, March 15
Time: 12:30-2pm

As “fake news”, hoaxes and propaganda become a major threat to information, journalists need to be able to recognize and debunk disinformation. This talk will present the different types of disinformation, how to recognize it and how to fact-check it. It will present various tools for fact-checking and show examples of stories for which they were used.
