Final Research Report

Identification
All SSHRC grant holders are required to report on what has been accomplished with the funding provided to them. Final Research Reports or Final Productivity Reports must be submitted within six months of the termination date of the grant.
Final Research Reports may be used by SSHRC to promote its funded research and knowledge transfer, to enhance accountability, to demonstrate research results and outcomes of grants, to assess client satisfaction and to provide input for program evaluations.

Research Findings Summary

Summarize your research results and their general significance in one page or less (300-500 words). Use plain, non-technical language. Describe how the research evolved from the objectives set out in your original project proposal and, where possible, explain the significance to Canadians. SSHRC Public Affairs may wish to use this summary for promotional purposes; they will contact you before doing so.

Our project brought together researchers, rural community residents and government policy makers at all levels to examine social cohesion in a rural context. This project the NRE involved 17 researchers at 14 universities, hired over 66 students and 16 non-students, and produced over 198 reports, papers, presentations and flyers for a variety of audiences. To answer the principle questions surrounding social cohesion, researchers examined existing literature, census and survey materials, and information collected over 3 years of work by the NRE Project of CRRF. A survey of 1995 households was conducted in 20 of the NRE sites. The major findings are organized below in terms of our original research questions. (1) What does social cohesion mean and how can it be measured in a rural context? Social cohesion was identified as "the extent to which people respond collectively to achieve their valued outcomes." It is an outcome of a series of processes specific to activities, times, and groups. It may be positive for some and negative for others. It was measured by how community residents perceive their cohesiveness and how they perform with respect to cohesiveness. (2) What systems promote or undermine social cohesion in contemporary rural Canada? Our research identified several major processes affecting the level of social cohesion in rural Canada: technological changes, market liberalization, concentration, and state fiscal crises. These in turn have increased mobility in rural areas, shifted populations so that some communities decline while others grow, reduced the power of most rural places, and marginalized smaller producers. We traced the impacts of these processes on social cohesion by focusing on four underlying types of social relations: market (rights and obligations determined by supply and demand); bureaucratic (rights based on authority and status); associative (rights based on shared interests); and, communal (rights based on reciprocity and favours). (3) How have the form and intensity of social cohesion changed over the last 30 years? Traditionally, social cohesion in rural areas was based on associative and communal relations. With increasing globalization, mobility, and the ascendancy of the new right, market and bureaucratic relations have come to dominate public life. The nature of social cohesion has been changing as a result. (4) How have changes in social cohesion affected rural communities? Rural people are at a disadvantage where populations decline and market and bureaucratic social relations dominate. This is reflected in reductions in social services, economic challenges (where social cohesion cannot minimize transactions costs or reduce uncertainty), weakened communications (where the infrastructure or skills cannot keep up with the pace of change), and governance structures that are less able to cope with shifting power relations. At the same time, new forms of social cohesion are emerging that are more effective in the new rural context. (5) How can rural communities best position themselves in the light of our analysis? There are many economic, political, and social actions to be taken in order to improve the rural situation. Most of them would benefit by improving the nature and extent of social cohesion. They will need to accommodate populations that are more mobile, dispersed, heterogeneous, and independent. This means diversifying local economies and social relations. It includes building capacity to function effectively in markets and bureaucracies, both locally and at a distance. Developing expertise in communications and governance are also required.

Success/Hindrance Factors

Indicate whether the following factors contributed or caused difficulties in achieving your research.

Success Factors - Indicate and rank up to 3 factors that contributed most to the success of your research.

Rank	Factor
1	Team collaboration
2	SSHRC Funding
3	Complementary funding (i.e. other sources)

List any additional factors that facilitated your research.

Willingness of the rural communities to collaborate

Hindrance Factors - Indicate and rank up to 3 factors that most hindered your research.

Rank	Factor
1	Release time (i.e. employment)
2	Physical/material resources (office space, etc.)
3	Partnership negotiation

List any additional difficulties you confronted in your research.

Some of our smaller universities have few graduate students, resources, and time for research; Rural research has high travel and time costs; Partnership demands little understood by funders.

Final Research Report

Impacts
Assess - as well as you can under present circumstances - the current and/or potential impacts of the research on which you are reporting. Answer the questions below using the response scale provided.
In which one of the following areas will your research have the most impact?	Social
Will your research have an impact on our understanding of culture (broadly understood), e.g., of literature, art, history, anthropology, cultural criticism, etc.?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on our understanding of social issues and social development?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on our understanding of economic development, policies or practices?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on public policy debate?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on teaching (e.g., development of new courses) or professional practice?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on the development of new research methodologies?	Possibly
Will your research have an impact in other disciplines?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on international collaboration?	Definitely
Have your research findings been disseminated to an academic audience?	Yes
Have your research findings been disseminated to decision-makers in the public, private and not-for-profit sectors?	Yes
Have your research findings been disseminated to the general public?	Yes
Have your research findings for this project contributed to – or will it contribute to – enhancing accessible research infrastructure (e.g., collections of materials, Web sites, data bases, networks, etc.)?	Yes
Please add any further comments or examples on current impacts of the research on which you are reporting.
Our research has brought rural residents together locally and nationally. They have come to contextualize their situation and establish networks with others. We have brought policy-makers into contact with rural people and informed their deliberations with our research. We have established a national research and education infrastructure with high quality and rural-relevant data.

Your Comments

As we strive to provide the best possible service to our community, we count on you to let us know how we are doing. On the basis of your own experience, please select the response that best describes your satisfaction with the following aspects of services that SSHRC provides.

Support provided by SSHRC staff (i.e., technical and programs).	Very satisfied
New SSHRC web-based form.	Very satisfied
Easy access (e.g. SSHRC web site).	Satisfied
Response time for web forms help.	Very satisfied

We welcome your comments and suggestions for improving our service. SSHRC staff will pass your feedback on to the various sections and will also endeavour to respond to your comments directly.

Getting bumped out of system randomly is frustrating. Would like to have an electronic copy of our work available after. Should be able to go to the last page or any page directly. Need a consistent ordering of entries- hard to catch errors/duplicate entries. Add in a search button so we could locate specific records as we go along.
