

Teaching Strategies for Engaging Students Through Online and Remote Learning

Designing and running your course online

Your online course will need to have a variety of learning activities that help students. Once the course has been designed and you are ready to teach online, there are many things to keep in mind. We've selected some links and videos that will help you plan, design and deliver your course. Be sure to visit the CTL website for additional ideas and strategies for promoting student engagement and success.

Managing communication with students

Providing feedback to students on learning

Delivering an engaging online course

CTL, Concordia University (39:46)

Watch video

Getting started with your online course

CTL, Concordia University (40:47)

Watch video

Designing Online Activities

CTL, Concordia University (43:50)

Watch video

Reach out!

Please direct any questions you have about these recommendations to teaching@concordia.ca

For technical support using Zoom and YuJa, contact IITS at: help@concordia.ca

For technical support using Moodle, contact the Moodle team at: moodle@lists.concordia.ca

Concordia Moodle Help for Instructors (Moodle login required) has a catalogue of Moodle resources for faculty.

This resource was developed by Concordia's Centre for Teaching and Learning. To learn more about this subject, please visit CTLs official website.