Academic Unit Head
Morden, Peter

Job Specific Requirements
1. Graduate degree in relevant discipline.
2. Successful experience in practice-based, experiential teaching.
3. Current, relevant practitioner experience.
4. Specific academic training in task group work.
5. Advanced professional training in small group facilitation and group dynamics, experiential program leadership, training and consultation.

Additional Comments
This is a multi-section course. As such, all sections must adhere to standard, core elements, as indicated on the course outline template designed for this course. Instructors are required to pursue the same core competencies and learning objectives and utilize equivalent evaluation schemes. Additionally, instructors must choose an approved textbook or selection of course readings from a predetermined list. All AHSC courses are required to use the same grading scale.

Applicants may consult course templates and outlines at the AHSC front office.

Course outlines are to be submitted no later than two weeks prior to the start of the semester to the Undergraduate Programs Assistant, and require the approval of the Department Chair before the start of classes.

Major revisions to the Undergraduate Human Relations programs have become effective in the 2018-2019 academic year. Program requirements have been revised and some course descriptions have also been revised. Applicants are encouraged to review these changes in the Undergraduate Academic Calendar (http://www.concordia.ca/academics/undergraduate/calendar.html).

Job Specific Requirements

Applicants must have a PhD degree in biological sciences. Teaching or research experience in a biological science discipline related to the course at the university level is required. This course surveys the biology of vertebrates. Topics include the evolution of the major groups and a comparative analysis of the form (anatomy), function (physiology), and life history of vertebrates. Examples from the local fauna are emphasized.

The instructor will have 12 contact hours for laboratories. There are 2 laboratory sections which meet each week. The instructor will be present for the first hour of the laboratory sessions.

The instructor will supervise Teaching Assistants who will manage the instruction in the laboratory and assist in the teaching of the course. TAs each have 130 hours teaching responsibility during the course. The instructor will also work in close collaboration with a Biology Department Laboratory Technician assigned to the laboratory. The technician will set up material required for the laboratory and remove the material at the end of laboratories.

Job Specific Requirements
Applicants must have a Ph.D. degree in biological sciences and teaching or research experience in nutrition at the university level. This course introduces the science of nutrition through the study of the metabolism, utilization, and functions of all essential nutrients: proteins, lipids, carbohydrates, vitamins, minerals, fibre and water. Nutritional needs throughout the life cycle are studied and some of the methods available to evaluate the nutritional status of individuals are reviewed. The influence of environmental factors on nutrient intake is discussed and the consequences of dietary deficiencies are examined.

Job Specific Requirements

This course provides an overview of the design and development of training in organizations by introducing students to theoretical and practical concepts. Topics explored include the organizational and personal benefits of training, different modes of delivery including e-learning (an instructional systems design approach to training development), the transfer of learned skills to the workplace environment, the evaluation of training, the management of the development process, and trends and successful practices in the field.

Teaching responsibilities: This is an asynchronous, online course offered through e-Concordia. The course is already developed: the lessons are already recorded, and the assignments are already determined. The instructor is responsible for managing the course. This specifically involves (1) becoming familiar with the existing course, (2) scheduling three live, online sessions—one before the Drop date, one in the middle of the course, and one close to finals to help students prepare for the final (additional sessions are also welcomed), (3) monitoring and contributing to the discussion board, (4) coordinating grading with the teaching assistants, and (5) grading assignments.

Degree requirement: MA Educational Technology, MBA, MS Management, MA Adult Education (with emphasis on Training and Development).

Required expertise: Minimum of 2 years’ experience as a training and development professional in a workplace setting (corporation, government, non-profit).

Language requirements: Excellent written/spoken English skills.

Assets: PhD in the fields named above. One of the following certifications: Certified Training and Development Professional or Certified Training Practitioner from the Institute for Performance and Learning, Certified Performance and Learning Professional from the Association for Talent Development, Certified Human Resources Professional, or SHRM certification.

Please go to https://fris.concordia.ca to complete the online application by 11:59pm (non-CUPFA and CUPFA members).

The application deadline is March 10, 2020 by 11:59pm. No late applications will be accepted.

Please address the following to Dr. Sara Kennedy, Department Chair:
• Cover Letter: explaining your qualifications, reasons for applying to teach this course, and approach to teaching the course.
• Updated CV (or electronic dossier – mandatory for non-CUPFA members)

If you have not previously taught this course successfully three times or more, the Part-time Hiring Committee (PTHC) would find it helpful in assessing your candidacy to receive:
• course evaluations from other departments or institutions;
• any other materials you feel are relevant.

Please note that part-time faculty members are responsible for ensuring that their Academic and Professional Services Dossier (Article 10.11) is kept up to date. You may review and make changes to your dossier, as required, between the hours of 9:00am and 4:00pm Mondays to Fridays.

Academic Unit Head
Kennedy, Sarita

Job Specific Requirements
Applicants to teach Credit ESL courses will: (1) hold a graduate degree in TESL, Applied Linguistics, or a closely related field; (2) show evidence of having had formal training in the teaching of English as a second language, including a supervised practicum in ESL; and (3) have had at least two years’ experience teaching English as a Second Language, including academic writing, in a university, university-associated, or CEGEP setting.

Credit ESL courses are coordinated, multi-section courses; to ensure quality control, all sections must adhere to standard core elements. In assuming a Credit ESL post, the successful applicant agrees to fulfill the following duties: (1) teach scheduled classes; (2) use the prescribed textbook(s); (3) collaborate with colleagues in the preparation and marking of common midterm and final exams; (4) invigilate midterm and final exams; and (5) attend all regularly scheduled term meetings. This course has two common midterm exams, typically held on Saturdays after weeks 5 and 10 of the semester; instructors will be informed of the exact dates, times, and locations of common midterm exams as soon as they are confirmed.

Please go to https://fris.concordia.ca to complete the online application by 11:59pm (non- CUPFA and CUPFA members).

The application deadline is March 10, 2020 by 11:59pm. No late applications will be accepted.

Please address the following to Dr. Sara Kennedy, Department Chair:
• Cover Letter: explaining your qualifications, reasons for applying to teach this course, and approach to teaching the course.
• Updated CV (or electronic dossier – mandatory for non-CUFPA members)

If you have not previously taught this course successfully three times or more, the Part-time Hiring Committee (PTHC) would find it helpful in assessing your candidacy to receive:
• course evaluations from other departments or institutions;
• any other materials you feel are relevant.

Please note that part-time faculty members are responsible for ensuring that their Academic and Professional Services Dossier (Article 10.11) is kept up to date. You may review and make changes to your dossier, as required, between the hours of 9:00am and 4:00pm Mondays to Fridays.

Job Specific Requirements

Candidates must have at least five years of relevant professional journalism experience and, preferably, a graduate degree as well as a thorough understanding of research methods for journalism. Teaching experience at the post-secondary level is an asset. Experience with access to information requests is also an asset.

Applications must include the following documents:
- A cover letter detailing qualifications and experience.
- A recent CV
- Documentation showing evidence of research in the area may be requested.
- A statement of teaching philosophy that includes how you would approach the course material.

Additional Comments

This course introduces students to research methods with a focus on primary sources, such as official documents, legal and financial records, access to information requests, electronic databases, as well as in-depth interviews. These methods are treated as both sources of story ideas and as essential elements of good reporting.

Students will learn how to interpret government reports, budget documents, annual reports, statistics, opinion polls, and court documents for use as primary sources in their assignments.

Key topics to address:
- Building contacts and sources
- Advanced interviewing techniques
- How to access databases and archival material
- How to file an official access to information request.

Oppenheimer, Maya Rae

Job Specific Requirements

TOPIC: Montreal Festival Culture

Requirements: Master’s degree or equivalent in an appropriate field and demonstrated teaching and/or research record in Art History, Cultural Studies, Film Studies, Music or Theatre or a related and appropriate discipline.

Strong familiarity with local festival cultures, both historic and contemporary, in and around Montreal an asset. Festivals may be approached in an expanded sense and should encompass a range of disciplinary practices, thus drawing on Montreal’s rich summer culture.

Experience teaching high enrollment, elective (non-degree specialist) classes is an asset. This course runs out of the Fine Arts Interdisciplinary Studies area: experience or ability teaching across methods of disciplinary inquiry and expanding upon course topics to relate to cultural, media and current industry practice is also an asset.

Special topics courses run out of the Fine Arts Interdisciplinary Studies area provide non-Fine Arts students the opportunity to explore areas of elective interest during their degree study. Students should expect exposure to contemporary scholarship in the relevant course area and to rigorous tools in critical inquiry. Classes should feature interdisciplinary approaches to the special topic and opportunities to practice oral and written communication skills in course participation and assessments.

Please apply online through FRIS.

All applicants must submit a letter of intent (1 page max), a statement of teaching philosophy that clearly relates their candidacy to interdisciplinarity and critical thinking in their pedagogy (2 page max), a current CV.

Also note that while the midterm exam will not be coordinated, all sections may be asked to offer their respective midterm(s) on the same date.
*The instructors are required to send the course outline to the Course Coordinator one month prior to the start of classes and the Department Assistant once the final outline is approved.
*If you have not taught the course that you are applying for at least three times successfully, please note that you must demonstrate that you belong to one of the classification specified by AACSB as explained in the document "John Molson School of Business Faculty Qualifications – Standard 15 - AACSB Definition of Criteria" found at the following link: http://www.concordia.ca/content/dam/jmsb/docs/jobs/aacsb-standard-15-faculty-qualifications.pdf

Additional Comments
Course Description: This course provides students with an integrating framework for examining various types of financial institutions and the means of managing their operations. Topics include uniqueness of financial institutions; application of portfolio and corporate finance theories to the management of assets, liabilities, capital structure and off-balance sheet operations; interest rate and liquidity risk exposure; loan portfolio management, loan pricing and credit rationing; capital adequacy and regulatory environment. The strategic repercussions for such institutions, given the rapidly changing financial and regulatory environments, are also reviewed through the analysis of cases illustrating current issues.

Course Content & Evaluation Scheme

Required Chapters/Topics to be covered:
Chapters 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13

Required Course Evaluation:
Project - 20%
Midterm - 30%
Final Exam 50%

Instructors are expected to make every effort to follow the required content and evaluation scheme. The Department reserves the right to make minor modifications to the course outline in the interest of delivering comparable student experiences across multiple sections of a course throughout the year.
