   “that the minutes of the meeting of December 14th, 2018 be approved.”
   CARRIED

4. Business Arising from the Minutes
   There was no business arising from the minutes.

5. Chair’s Remarks
   The Dean reviewed some of the Strategic Speculations that the Faculty had made three years ago that have morphed into something else.
   1. Concordia Field School project or program – combined interdisciplinary field school that would attend to some of the world’s urgent problems. The faculty has moved ahead to develop a whole series of field schools. Thanks to everyone who has been working on and designing these courses to be launched. There are six field schools this year, which will happen in Colombia, Japan, China, Denmark (2), Alaska, and the Czech Republic.
   2. Media Bank – MIRC (Moving Image Resource Centre) and DISC (Digital Image Slice Collection) would merge into a single unit. A virtual bookshop that was proposed hasn’t come to life but those conversations continue. The notion was that all the publications by our faculty could be available for prospective students. The Media Bank morphed into VCR, the Visual Collections Repository, which is upstairs on the 3rd floor. It is open for everyone to use.

3. Take back Saint-Catherine street – the idea was to kick out all of the shops so that Fine Arts could extend its fine arts presence on the street for things like an open rehearsal space, a fab lab, and a teaching collection. None of those things happened, but the idea was compelling. The University decided to create 4TH Space, a space for the whole university, which is officially opening today. It is an incredibly beautiful space. The ideas from this faculty changed the way that 4TH Space was conceived. It is a research portal that will showcase the complex research that happens across the whole university. Doug Moffat from the Faculty of Fine Arts and Christine Swintak, an MFA graduate worked on the project. 4TH space needed to be a receptacle where anything might happen. The floor is waterproof and has drains. The rigging is strong enough to hold a car engine from the ceiling. The sprinkler system is configured so that sweetgrass can be burned for an Indigenous ceremony. There’s a whole series of programming over the next number of months. The Dean and Associate Dean, Joanna Berzowska will be going to the inaugural opening of the space this morning where the Mayor of Montreal will also be in attendance. 4TH Space is officially under the purview of both the Office of Research and the Office of the Provost. They have a low email policy. Just drop by and see them.

4. Indigenous initiatives – new staff members have been hired in the Office of Community Engagement, in the Centre for Teaching and Learning, and in the Indigenous Student Centre. Because we now have such incredible resources at the university, there is good support and guidance to think about how to move forward as a faculty. At each Faculty Council meeting this semester we will have guests that will generate further curiosity and interest among us and offer resources and help us offer support for a lot of the work that is happening at the university. Elaine Cheasley Patterson has been incredibly diligent and deeply interested in this project. The guest in February is Donna Goodleaf who is the Indigenous Curriculum and Pedagogy Advisor. She will talk about inclusive pedagogy and decolonizing curriculum. Her work falls within the portfolio of Sandra Gabriele who is the Vice-Provost, Innovation in Teaching & Learning. In March we’ll have the new Senior Director of the Indigenous Leadership Group, William Lindsay. In April, to talk about the Indigenous student experience, Orenda Boucher-Curotte, who is the Coordinator of the Aboriginal Student Resource Centre, will be here with Andrew Woodlaw the Dean of Students. In May, we’ll have Geneviève Sioui, who is in the Community Engagement Office, and Charmaine Lyn, who is the Director, join us. To start us off today, we will be joined by Heather Igloliorte, the newly appointed Special Advisor to the Provost on Advancing Indigenous Knowledges with Anne Whitelaw, Deputy Provost and Vice Provost, Planning and Positioning to talk about Territorial Acknowledgement. We are hoping that this series will act as a model for the rest of the university about how these conversations might get started at a faculty level.

6. Presentation on the Territorial Acknowledgement
   Guests: Heather Igloliorte Associate Professor of the Department of Art History and University Research Chair and most recently Special Advisor to the Provost on Advancing Indigenous Knowledges and Anne Whitelaw, Deputy Provost and Vice Provost, Planning and Positioning and faculty member of the Department of Art History.
- The Territorial Acknowledgement is for any visitor on the land, whether they are Indigenous or not. What’s important is that it becomes incorporated into the life of the university because it recognizes that historical relationship with Indigenous people who were the original peoples on the land. A welcome to the territory can only be done by people from this land, not other Indigenous or non-Indigenous people. A territorial acknowledgement can and should be done by anyone. You can start your classes with a territorial acknowledgement. You don’t need to invite someone in to do that. Pronunciation is available on the website. There is also a French version of the acknowledgement. Shiann Whitebean, now a masters student, took the lead on creating the acknowledgement. It is a living document that may change over time. The website breaks down the acknowledgement line by line to explain why the territorial acknowledgement is worded in this particular way. It provides a rationale for why we are saying the things that we are saying. It is recommended that the territorial acknowledgement be read in your first class then again, because not everyone attends the first class, when the syllabus is given out. It is useful to take some time to discuss why it is being done, why it is important, what the purpose is and who it is for. It is not just for Indigenous students, it is for everyone to hear. We are trying to make the university a place where Indigenous students feel welcome and can be successful. There is no requirement to read the Territorial Acknowledgement at the beginning of class. No one is compelled to indigenize the university, but everyone is welcome to. The Territorial Acknowledgement can be found at https://www.concordia.ca/about/indigenous/territorial-acknowledgement.html

At approximately 11:00 am, due to several departures, there was a loss of quorum

7. Presentation on Making Art Making Politics
   Guests: Sarah Brown, Advisor, Strategic Initiatives & Special Projects with Ida Toft (mentor on the project), Eduardo Della Foresta and Mikaela Clark-Gardner

- Making Art Making Politics started with an idea of bringing in a very socially engaged political party in-residence. The idea for Concordia was to get the students politically engaged and to feel empowered through working on politics. They had students come from different faculties. They started in April, but grew in September, which became the core group that saw the project move to the end. They were given access to the Canadian Pavilion of the Expo 67 at Parc Jean-Drapeau that they used from September until the beginning of December. They worked with Entrenous, an enterprise interested in connecting people to spaces.

- The idea of Making Art Making Politics was to look at space and how the legality of space are utilized, how vacancies occur within Montreal, how can they be reclaimed, and what type of governance structure should or should not be used. They decided that there wouldn’t be a governance structure and they would just let things grow organically. Eventually they had the idea of a Seed Bomb. What eventually occurred was an amazing opportunity to occupy a space that has enormous historical significance within Montreal, and to image their place within Montreal, within the city, within this structure of legality of the islands and how do they position themselves as students within this idea of Making Art Making Politics. They were looking at the idea of having an activist role. How do they activate the space and themselves. The Seed Bomb was an event, with installations, video work, workshops, and performances. It was really about bringing the building alive and bringing a sense of community to the building.

- Shauna Janssen, Department of Theatre – February 11, 2019 – June 30, 2019
The Faculty of Fine Arts Curriculum Committee has reviewed and approved the ARTU-11 curriculum dossier from the Department of Studio Arts. We hereby submit this dossier for review at Faculty Council on February 15, 2019.

This document proposes to delete the Minor in Photography, which has been suspended since 2010.

There are no resource implications.

With thanks for your consideration.

INTERNAL MEMORANDUM

TO: Dr. Elaine Cheasley Paterson, Associate Dean, Academic

FROM: Leila Sujir, Associate Professor & Chair, Department of Studio Arts
       Marisa Portolese, Associate Professor, Photography, Department of Studio Arts

DATE: November 2nd, 2018

SUBJECT: ARTU – 11

Please accept the following curriculum changes from the Department of Studio Arts with regard to the Minor in Photography. The Department proposes that the Minor in Photography be deleted from the Undergraduate Calendar as a program option.

Admissions to the Minor in Photography have been suspended since 2010 when it was formally recognized that this program did not have the necessary resources to be supported. The main factor for the proposed deletion is based on a review of enrollments in the Minor, which revealed that a large percentage of students dropped the Minor prior to graduation. This suggests that they were only enrolled in the program in order to gain access into Photography classes. This is the only Minor option that allowed students to enroll in most of the core Photography courses that are usually reserved for Majors. Upon its suspension, 10 spaces were added to the Photography Major admissions, bringing the program to 50 newly admitted Photography Majors per academic year.

We had verified with Manager, Jean-Pierre Duchesne from the Student Academics Office and there were 2 active students still enrolled in the Minor. One student stopped attending in the fall of 2014 and the other in the winter of 2015. It was confirmed that these students would still be able to graduate should they decide to register for more courses in the future. Since the Minor program has been suspended for over 8 years with no plans of revival, we propose deletion as a way to provide clarity to students who see the program listed in the Undergraduate Calendar but are blocked from enrolling into it. A minor editorial change was also made to PHOT 221, which should have listed PHOT 210 and not PHOT 200 as a prerequisite.

Sincerely,

______________________________________________________________________________

Marisa Portolese, Associate Professor, Photography, Department of Studio Arts

PHOT 210 Foundations in Photographic Vision Theory and Practice I (6 credits)

Prerequisite: Enrolment in the Major or Minor in Photography, or 24 credits in a specialization/major in the Faculty of Fine Arts. In this course, students investigate and examine the numerous aspects of photography's complex history, aesthetics, and processes, as well as different camera and darkroom techniques specific to colour photography. Students learn how to control the camera, expose film properly (transparency and negative), develop good printing skills in colour, and produce a coherent body of work. They should become aware of how colour contributes to the structure and meaning of photographs. Other topics include the history of colour photography and aesthetic and conceptual issues in the work of contemporary photographers. Students are expected to work on technical exercises and produce a final portfolio which is content-driven, demonstrates technical proficiency, and expresses the individual's artistic interest and vision.

NOTE: Students who have received credit for PHOT 200, 221, or 322 may not take this course for credit.

NOTE: Each student's work is evaluated by a jury of Photography faculty at the end of each term.

NOTE: Students are required to bear the cost of film stock, processing, printing, and other materials.

PHOT 311 Large Format Photography I (3 credits)
Prerequisite: PHOT 210, 211; ARTH 267; enrolment in the Major or Minor in Photography; or written permission of the program director. A studio course introducing large format photography, its techniques and application. Demonstrations cover the basics of view camera operation, light metering, sheet film exposure, development, and advanced printing. Assignments based on traditional genres encourage ease with all aspects of large format use and their personal applications.
NOTE: Each student's work is evaluated by a jury of Photography faculty at the end of the term.
NOTE: Students are required to bear the cost of film stock, processing, printing, and other materials.

To: Rebecca Duclos, Dean, Faculty of Fine Arts
From: Elaine Paterson, Associate Dean, Academic
Date: January 31, 2019
Re: Curriculum dossier, Department of Studio Arts, ARTU-12

The Faculty of Fine Arts Curriculum Committee has reviewed and approved the ARTU-12 curriculum dossier from the Department of Studio Arts. We hereby submit this dossier for review at Faculty Council on February 15, 2019.

This document proposes to raise the number of required ceramics credits with the Ceramics Major from 18 to 27, allowing Majors to gain greater depth and breadth in this area.

The proposal also includes revised descriptions for three core courses within the Sculpture program: SCUL 210 Sculpture and Material Practices, SCUL 310 Sculpture and Spatial Practices, and SCUL 410 Sculpture and Interventionist Practices. These changes allow for better articulation of the technical skills that are developed through these courses.

The Sculpture program already has the resources and infrastructure established to support the implementation of these courses, therefore there are no resource implications.

With thanks for your consideration.

INTERNAL MEMORANDUM

TO: Dr. Elaine Cheasley Paterson, Associate Dean, Academic

FROM: Leila Sujir, Associate Professor & Chair, Department of Studio Arts

DATE: November 2nd, 2018

SUBJECT: Ceramics and Sculpture (ARTU – 12)

Please accept the following curriculum changes from the Department of Studio Arts with regard to the Ceramics and Sculpture programs.

The Ceramics program proposes to raise the number of required ceramics credits within their Ceramics Major from 18 to 27. Due to the highly technical nature of this medium, these additional courses would allow Majors to gain breadth and depth in ceramics and better prepare them for the field. Two of their regularly offered Special Topics classes at the 300-level, Urban Clay and 2D3D: Print and Clay are now being changed to permanent courses. Both these courses have been offered over the past nine years and have always had high enrollment numbers. Adding a three-credit Advanced Special Topics at the 400-level will allow for more flexibility in the curriculum to teach specialized advanced topics in ceramics. Finally, the program proposes a three-credit course at the 200 level, which would offer flexibility at the introductory level for non-majors by adding the option of a single semester course whereas only year-long courses currently exist. The Ceramics program has the resources and infrastructure established to support these courses. Therefore, there are no resource implications associated with the proposed curriculum changes.

The Sculpture program proposes to revise the course descriptions for the three core courses, SCUL 210: Sculpture and Material Practices, 310: Sculpture and Spatial Practices, and 410: Sculpture and Interventionist Practices, in order to better articulate the technical skills that are developed in metal work, wood work and mould-making/casting. This will improve clarity around the curricular progression of the program, from a focus on materials (SCUL 210), to spatial and public consideration (SCUL 310), and finally to a focus on the student’s individual practice (SCUL 410). Finally, three of the program’s Special Topics classes at the 300-level, SCUL 311: Metal Casting: Bronze & Aluminum I, SCUL 312: Metal Casting: Bronze & Aluminum II, as well as SCUL 397: Digital Sculpture II are now being changed to permanent courses. The Sculpture program already has the resources and infrastructure established to support the implementation of these courses, which have been offered through Special Topics since 2014 (4 years).
The following grid gives a consolidated view of the proposed changes.

PROGRAM CHANGE: Ceramics Major

Proposed [X] Undergraduate or [ ] Graduate Curriculum Changes

Faculty/School: Fine Arts
Department: Studio Arts
Program: Ceramics Major
Degree: BFA
Calendar Section/Graduate Page Number: 81.110.2

Type of Change:

[X] Requirements  [ ] Regulations  [ ] Program Deletion  [ ] New Program

Present Text (from 2018/2019) calendar

Program

60 BFA Major in Ceramics
18 CERA 230\textsuperscript{6}, 330\textsuperscript{6}, 430\textsuperscript{6}
6 DRAW 200\textsuperscript{5}
6 ARTH 264\textsuperscript{3}, 350\textsuperscript{3}
6 Chosen from Art History; ARTT; VDEO 350\textsuperscript{3}; or other history-based courses chosen from Cinema and Theatre
6 Chosen from Ceramics, Fibres and Material Practices, or Sculpture electives
18 Studio Art electives

Rationale:
Currently only 18 credits of ceramics courses are required for a Ceramics Major. Ceramics is an extremely technical medium and more courses need to be required for majors to become competent in the medium in order to prepare them for the field. The change in Ceramics Major requirements would increase the number of credits in Ceramics from 18 to 27, adding 9 credits at the intermediate and advanced levels so that students can gain more specialized knowledge of form making and surface finishing. Six credits will be shifted from the option of choosing 6 credits between Ceramics, Fibres or Sculpture electives. The requirement for DRAW 200\textsuperscript{5} will be dropped with three credits moved to ceramics and three credits added to general studio arts electives allowing students more options in selecting the electives they would like to complement their practice in ceramics. Art History and Art Theory related course requirements will remain unchanged, only with a small addition to the note allowing flexibility pending on the Art History course offering schedule and the student's study profile. A Student Request will be required.

Resource Implications:
The courses that will be required for the Ceramics Major are already being offered on a regular basis. As no new credits need to be assigned to the program area, there are no resource implications for this change.

Prerequisite: Enrolment in a BFA degree program excluding the Major in Ceramics. This introductory-level course covers fundamental ceramic techniques including handbuilding, glazing and firing.

NOTE: Students in the Major in Ceramics may not take this course for credit.

Rationale:

There is a huge interest in ceramics courses. This Fall we turned away 30 students interested in taking ceramics at the 200 level. A course such as this would open up more opportunities for ceramics classes. We currently do not have any offerings for 3-credit courses at the 200-level which would be desirable for students who only want or are able to make a semester long commitment to ceramics. We find this has been the case with Design Majors, Art Education students and other FOFA students looking for studio electives, as well as international students who sometimes are in residence for a single semester. This course may be rotated annually with our special topics course, therefore there are no resource implications. As the program has benefited from new kilns, there is capacity to grow, if additional credits are available. The department keep a waiting list of students who could potentially be admitted if additional credits are available. Therefore, adding this new course will allow some flexibility for growth.

| CERA 391 Urban Clay (3 credits)
| Prerequisite: CERA 230 or permission of the Coordinator.
| This course brings ceramics in relation to the city through the production of public artworks. Students develop a project in public space on Concordia’s downtown campus, from an initial proposal through exhibition. Topics include installation strategies, site-specificity, public art and contemporary ceramics along with techniques of mould-making and slip-casting. |

Rationale:
This course has been offered as a CERA 398: Special Topics, over the past 9 years, and has always shown good enrolment numbers. This year, the course filled to capacity with 18 students, and we had a number of students on the waiting list. It will now be listed as a requirement option at the 300-level in the new Ceramics Program.

| CERA 498 Special Topics in Ceramics (3 credits)
Prerequisite: 300-level CERA course, or permission of the Coordinator. An advanced studio course that provides an opportunity for the study of more specialized aspects of ceramics. Specific topics for this course, and prerequisites relevant in each case, are stated in the Undergraduate Class Schedule. |

Rationale:
While 3-credit special topics courses currently exist and are very popular at the 300 level in Ceramics, historically there has not been an option for a 3-credit special topics course at the 400 level. Adding this special topics course option at the 400 level allows for more flexibility in the curriculum to teach specialized topics that require an intermediate level as a prerequisite.

Present Text (from 2018/2019) calendar

SCUL 210 Sculpture and Material Practices (6 credits)
Prerequisite: See N.B. number (1).
This is a studio-based course, in which students explore creative research to facilitate their development as artists in the encompassing discipline of sculpture. Modes of expression in sculpture are investigated through a variety of contemporary and traditional materials.

Proposed Text

SCUL 210 Sculpture and Material Practices (6 credits)
Prerequisite: See N.B. number (1).
In this studio-based course, students explore the expansive field of contemporary sculpture and the range of materials and ideas employed by contemporary artists working in the discipline. Students present their sculptures through critiques, class discussions and individual consultations. Students gain exposure to metal work, wood work, and mould-making/casting, as well as experience in developing three-dimensional artistic works within the context of contemporary sculpture.

Rationale:

These changes are proposed to better reflect the curriculum in our classrooms, specifically by including reference to technical skills that are developed in metal work, wood work and mould-making/casting. This will also improve clarity around the curricular progression of the program, which begins with a focus on the materials of sculpture at the 200 level.

Resource Implications:

None.

Present Text (from 2018/2019) calendar
SCUL 311 Metal Casting: Bronze and Aluminum I (3 credits)
Prerequisite: SCUL 210 or CERA 230 or permission of the Department. This course includes an introduction to the sculptural histories and contemporary contexts of bronze casting, and the technical processes of casting. Students also develop their conceptual skills in making contemporary sculpture with this traditional method. The course includes slide lectures, class discussions, a final critique and technical demonstrations.
NOTE: A course fee for materials is required.

Rationale:
This area of study represents strong potential for next-generation, hands-on learning, by bringing traditional methodologies into present-day relevance. The Sculpture program already has the resources and infrastructure established to support the implementation of this course, which has been offered through Special Topics since 2014 (4 years).

Resource Implications:
None.

Other Programs within which course is listed:
None.

| SCUL 312 Metal Casting: Bronze and Aluminum II (3 credits)
Prerequisite: SCUL 311. A continuation of Metal Casting: Bronze and Aluminum I. In this advanced course, students learn to cast larger or more complex artworks in bronze or aluminum. Depending on the student’s project, this process may involve organic burn-out techniques, multiples or multi-part casting fabrication, or casting metal in sections to be welded together.

SCUL 410 Sculpture and Interventionist Practices (6 credits)
Prerequisite: SCUL 310 (300) or permission of the Department. This is an advanced investigation of concepts through research in sculpture oriented to the development of a personal body of work. Installation, intervention, and public space form the background for presenting sculptural ideas. Diversity of contemporary sculptural practice and critical discourse is encouraged to promote professional autonomy in students’ studio work and ideas. NOTE: Students who have received credit for SCUL 400 may not take this course for credit

Proposed Text

SCUL 410 Sculpture as Practice (6 credits)
Prerequisite: SCUL 310 (300) or permission of the Department. An advanced sculpture class in which students develop and create a body of artwork situated within the contexts of contemporary sculpture. Diversity of sculptural practices, research and critical discourse are encouraged to promote professional autonomy in students’ studio work. Students present their artworks through critiques, class discussions and individual consultations. NOTE: Students who have received credit for SCUL 400 may not take this course for credit

Rationale:
In SCUL 410, we have shifted the emphasis away from Interventionist practices (which is well-covered at the 3rd year level) and instead have focused on the development of each student’s individual artistic practice and autonomy in the field of sculpture through the development of each student’s particular interests.

Resource Implications:
None.

INTERNAL MEMORANDUM

TO: Leila Sujir
Associate Professor & Chair, Department of Studio Arts

FROM: Linda Swanson
Assistant Professor & Coordinator, Ceramics, Department of Studio Arts

DATE: November 8, 2018

SUBJECT: Ceramics Program (ARTU – 12)

The Ceramics Program, in consultation with the Studio Arts Department Council proposes changes to the Ceramic Major requirements as well as the listing of four new courses in the Ceramics curriculum.

The proposed change to the Major in Ceramics would increase the total number of credits taken specifically in ceramics courses from 18 to 27. The total number of required credits for the Major in Ceramics would remain the same at 60 with credits shifted from course requirements in other areas of Studio Arts to the intermediate and advanced levels in Ceramics. Due to the highly technical nature of this medium, these additional courses are necessary for students enrolled in the Major to gain breadth and depth in ceramics and better prepare them for the field.

The Ceramics Program proposes the introduction of four new courses into the Calendar. Two Special Topics courses, CERA 391: Urban Clay and CERA 392: 2D3D: Print and Clay (renamed Surface Tension), have been offered multiple times as three credit 300-level courses in Ceramics over the past nine years with successful enrolment. We would also like to add the description for a three-credit Advanced Special Topics at the 400-level into the calendar to allow for more flexibility in the curriculum to teach specialized advanced topics in ceramics. Finally, we propose the listing of a three-credit course at the 200 level in the calendar, CERA 201. This course would offer flexibility at the introductory level for non-majors by adding the option of a single semester course whereas only year-long courses are currently exist.

The Ceramics program has the resources and infrastructure established to support these courses if offered on a rotational basis. Should additional credits become available, we would like to regularly offer the new 400 level special topics and the 200 level introductory courses.

Sincerely,

Linda Swanson

SUBJECT: Sculpture Program (ARTU – 12)

The Sculpture Program, in consultation with the Studio Arts Department Council proposes changes to four course descriptions and the addition of three new courses in the Sculpture Program area.

The Sculpture Program proposes to revise the course descriptions for the three core courses, SCUL 210: Sculpture and Material Practices, SCUL 310: Sculpture and Spatial Practices, and SCUL 410: Sculpture and Interventionist Practices, in order to better articulate the technical skills that are developed in metal work, wood work and mould-making/casting. This will improve clarity around the curricular progression of the program, from a focus on materials (SCUL 210), to spatial and public consideration (SCUL 310), and finally to a focus on the student’s individual practice (SCUL 410).

Lastly, the Sculpture Program proposes the introduction of three new courses into the Calendar: SCUL 311: Metal Casting: Bronze & Aluminum, SCUL 312: Metal Casting: Bronze & Aluminum II, and SCUL 397: Digital Sculpture II. Both areas of study represent strong potential for next-generation, hands-on learning, the metal casting courses by bringing traditional methodologies into present-day relevance, and the digital sculpture through the use of new and digital technologies to make three-dimensional forms. The Sculpture program already has the resources and infrastructure established to support the implementation of these courses, which have been successfully offered through Special Topics since 2014 (4 years).

Sincerely,
Kelly Jazvac
