Discovery Search, searches through the library catalogue and some journal article databases. It’s a great place to start if you’re looking for a specific book or article.

Here is where you login to the library, when you’re off campus.

This is the section for undergrads, click ‘More...’ to see all services available.
Library Services

- Your student ID card is your Library Card; you need it to borrow books, use the printers on campus, and access the library after 11pm and Grey Nuns, at all times.

- You can borrow up to 30 print books at a time, and keep them for 21 days (then renew them online, if no one else requests them).

- To use Library databases, access online articles and ebooks when you are off campus, use your MyConcordia username and password to login to your Library Account on the Library website.
How do I find a book or an article, when I already know the title?
We want this result! It matches all the information from the citation we have.

When you click on Find it @ Concordia, a box like the one above will open. If there is a link under the green bar, click on it to get to the article.

You should end up on the journal page, where you can download a PDF of the article.
Sometimes the Find it @ Concordia won’t provide a direct link to the article. Instead, you need to Search for the Journal in the library catalogue.

You want to look for a link to an [electronic resource], which is an online journal.

We want to click on the first link, because we need an article from 2017. The first link has from 1999 – present available.

PRESIDENTS of the United States

Geographic Terms: FRANCE
UNITED States

Abstract: The article focuses on the comparison between the executive and legislative relations in the U.S. and France, which apply separate institutional qualities and experiences with dividend government. The author discussed the impact of institutional prerogatives and informal resources to American and French presidents in their aid to control legislative results under split-party dominance of national organizations.
